Garden Cities between Utopia and Dystopia

The idea of garden cities was based on the reformist tendencies of the 19th century, but the principles of this urban vision did not find widespread application until the 20th century. The comprehensive garden city program was, of course, very difficult to implement, so it is fascinating to see how the original idea mutated, who appropriated the reformist concept and how it was operated. The presentation will give several examples of the spheres of interest and the field of actors who promoted the reform vision in Central Europe.

We look forward to meeting you!
